Final Thoughts

As educators, truth-tellers, and keepers of history, we have an ethical and moral obligation to teach Thanksgiving responsibly while disrupting the dominant, one-sided colonial narrative that continues to perpetuate falsehoods and harm Indigenous communities to this day.

By confronting our past, we challenge untruths and make room for multiple narratives that offer diverse perspectives and paint a more complete picture of history. It's up to all of us to deconstruct the myths and stereotypes that are found throughout mainstream culture to face inaccuracies about the "First
